

Avon Tyrrell Unaccompanied Child and Young Person Policy

Purpose of policy

For their safety and enjoyment when participating in an organised event at Avon Tyrrell, to ensure that all participants under the age of 16 years are adequately supervised while unaccompanied by an adult.

The policy outlines the clear process for the Outdoor Learning Team to follow to ensure the safety of the young people we are responsible for when left in our care to participate.

Duty of Care

Many parents or guardians exercise their duty of care responsibly. However, there are parents who allow their children to go to, or be left at, facilities with no supervision at all. This may be due to an assumption about the level of supervision that staff will provide within the facility, therefore this document is designed to provide clarity to ensure parents and guardians or those with adult responsibility for young people can make informed decisions.

Avon Tyrrell Event structure

This describes scheduled sessions which are available to any member of the public to book on to. As a result, groups participating together can be made up of a range of people who know each other, and those who don't, children, young people, adults and families.

Children Aged up to 7 years old

Children aged up to 7 years old are to always remain under the supervision of a responsible adult. The adult does not have to participate in the chosen activity unless highlighted in our activity restrictions document, but they do need to be immediately available should pastoral or supervisory assistance be required.

Young People Aged 8-15

Young people aged 8 to 15 years old may be left unaccompanied by their responsible adult, providing the following conditions are met and fully understood:

Both the responsible adult and the young person must be happy with the arrangement of being left unaccompanied and ready for the responsibility and emotional self-management.

The young person is to be trusted to exhibit appropriate behaviour, be confident to ask for help when needed and to meet their adult again at a pre-determined place.

It is recommended that the responsible adult should be on site for the duration of the activity and to be contactable in the case of an emergency or assistance required.

The young person is to be left with a completed wrist band stating their name, the responsible adult's contact number and any relevant medical details.

Where young people may require medication, they must only be left unaccompanied if they are able to self-medicate.

Session Participant Numbers

There may be times when limited participant numbers on activity sessions mean that to protect both the young people and the outdoor learning staff it is not suitable for us to deliver that activity, as to do so would be operating outside our safeguarding policy.

Please see below outline of examples and how we would approach these.

If only one young people is booked on to an activity, an adult will be required to stay. Alternatively, we may offer an additional space on the activity FOC or we may look to move the young person to a different activity with additional participants.

Where an adult is booked onto an activity independently, we may call an additional member of staff to support, we may change the session or we may cancel the activity. This conforms with our lone working policy and our safeguarding policy to protect our staff. We reserve the right to cancel any sessions that only have 1 or 2 people booked on. In this instance you would get a full refund.

Rationale

As young people are all individuals, and they develop at different rates, it is important to take each young person in to consideration as an individual. Parents, or responsible adults who know the young people are best placed to know those in their care-and whether they will cope with the situation positively. This falls in line with Government and NSPCC guidelines on young people being home and venturing out into the community unaccompanied.

Young children (up to age 7) are generally unable to effectively assess risk, and are still developing their emotional self-management, and as a result may require more one to one support and encouragement to positively succeed than is readily available on a standard session. They may also need assistance with personal tasks such as changing for water activities or with personal care.

Young people who are aged 8 and older are typically better prepared for the challenges which come with taking part in activities, and with the instructor being responsible for their safety during the session, the risk to them is greatly reduced. However, when the session finishes, the risks and opportunities for incidents to occur are greatly increased and so having the responsible adult nearby to meet and oversee the ongoing safety of the young person is important.

Young people nearing the legal age of adulthood (16-17) may have responsibility to venture further from home and for longer periods of time. It is possible they will have their own transport such as a scooter or a car which does give greater freedom from reliance on responsible adults and so we have not specified guidelines for this age group.

Avon Tyrrell Unaccompanied Child and Young Person Policy

Guidelines for Parents/Carers

The following information has been designed in line with NSPCC and UK government guidelines to help you make an informed and safe decision about whether your child should be left at Avon Tyrrell to take part in a structured event (such as Go Adventure) without direct supervision from you or another appointed responsible adult.

Each child or young person is unique, so in practice each will be ready for having new responsibilities at a different time. You have the responsibility to know whether the opportunity for independence is appropriate for your child, and whether they are mature enough to step up to their responsibilities and keep themselves safe.

It is important to remember that being unattended at Avon Tyrrell is very different to other environments such as a leisure centre or local parks - our site is very large, with a number of potential hazards such as deep open water, barbed wire fences and large moving vehicles. If you decide it is appropriate to leave a young person at Avon Tyrrell, they will not be supervised by anyone outside of the structured event - although help will of course be given by our staff in emergencies.

The following structure aims to provide you with carefully considered rules and guidelines specific to this type of structured event to help ensure your child or young person is safe while visiting Avon Tyrrell.

7 years and under	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Children must always remain under direct supervision of a responsible adult.
8 to 15 year olds	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Young people and responsible adults must both be comfortable and confident that being left unaccompanied is appropriate. Young people must have a completed wrist band showing key information (provided at Reception.) Young people that are not able to self-medicate for general medication must not be left unaccompanied by an adult. Young people and responsible adults must pre-arrange appropriate drop off and collection times and locations on site and be aware what to do if either is unsure or plans disrupted.
16 and 17 year olds	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Young people aged 16 and 17 years can independently visit Avon Tyrrell without any further guidelines.
Young people with additional needs	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Young people who are unable to self-administer medication or who may require support for personal care tasks must not be left unaccompanied but are welcome to participate with a responsible adult overseeing. Young people with additional needs who require additional support that cannot reasonably be given by the instructor should not be left unaccompanied but are welcome to participate with a responsible adult overseeing and supporting as necessary.

Please note-that in line with our safeguarding policy, any young person booked to participate in an activity where the responsible adult intends to leave them unaccompanied, is on the basis that there is at least one other person present on the session in addition to the instructor. In instances where this does not occur, young people will not be able to be left unaccompanied, or where possible we will transfer the young person to another activity running at the same time.

All staff employed at Avon Tyrrell have undergone a Disclosure and Barring Check and regularly have Safeguarding and Health and Safety training.
